

Narcotic Hearts: Formed from the post lockdown remnants of St Albans' cult vaudeville rockers The Tuesday Club. The Narcos are currently racking up an impressive list of support slots which include My Life Story, Eddie and The Hot Rods and The Woodentops!

The Narcos are a band of many contrasts. A colourful live set, which is more juxtaposed than frontman Andreas' shirt choices that pitches somewhere between Glam, Post-Punk, Goth and Disco (think Alison Goldfrapp meets The Black Keys), their songs have more hooks than a trawlerman's poop deck convention.

Open Up Your Mind's Eye is the band's trend-bucking sophomore album and has been produced by the fab Gary 'Sticks' Hawkins. A much more direct offering than the band's debut ("We had to learn how to be THIS band and THIS band alone" said frontman Andreas), it includes the carefree summer single 'Summer's Coming', which the band have been touring throughout the summer months, with more singles to follow, plus videos to match!

"With a BUZZCOCKS-esque potency that is soon surrounded by strolling riffs & nagging rhythms. It is a joyous affair from that first breath & concentrating its keen intent on arousing the same seasonal felicity within the listener." - Ringmaster Review
